

We recommend doing moxa on the following points after ovulation, after egg transfer or IUI, and during early pregnancy. Moxa on these points will help create a favorable uterine environment for implantation and help prevent miscarriage.

Spleen 1

Spleen 1 is used to prevent uterine bleeding through lifting and holding the body's energy and blood.

Location: On the medial side of the big toe, 1mm from the corner of the nail.

Stomach 36

Stomach 36 is used to nourish and strengthen the body and encourage blood production to prepare the body for pregnancy.

Location: One hand width below the lower border of the knee and one finger-breadth lateral to the tibia.

Du 20

DU20 is used to lift the body's energy up and hold the embryo in the womb.

Location: On top of the head, in a depression in the middle of a line drawn from the upper tip of each ear.
